INTRODUCTION AND BACKGROUND

This report is issued in response to Governor Dennis Daugaard's Executive Order 2016-01.

HISTORY

The South Dakota child support guidelines were originally based on the findings and recommendations of the first Commission of Child Support, which was established in 1985. Among those recommendations approved by the 1986 Legislature, SDCL 25-7-6.12 requires that a commission on child support review the guidelines every four years. Seven commissions have convened since that time. The Legislature has approved the findings and recommendations of the 1988, 1996, 2000, 2004, 2008, and 2012 Commissions. The federal government currently requires states to review their guidelines at least once every four years.<sup>1</sup>

2016 COMMISSION ON CHILD SUPPORT

The 2016 Commission consists of several members that bring a variety of perspectives and personal and professional experiences to the Commission. The composition of the Commission fulfills the Executive Order requirement for two State legislators, one member from the House of Representatives and one member from the Senate; a noncustodial parent; a custodial parent; a representative of the South Dakota Judiciary; a representative of the South Dakota Department of Social Services; and a member in good standing of the South Dakota State Bar. The Commission is staffed and administered by the Department of Social Service (DSS) Division of Child Support (DCS).

PROCEEDINGS

The Commission first met on June 29 via teleconference to introduce Commission members and supporting staff, develop a shared understanding of their responsibilities and plan their schedule. The Commission planned and held public hearings on three separate occasions: July 20 in Pierre, August 24 in Sioux Falls, and September 21 in Rapid City. The first public hearing was also linked by video-conferencing to a public hearing location in Aberdeen. The hearing locations and times were publicized by paid advertisements in local newspapers, public service announcements on the radio, the DSS website, and the State Bar Association newsletter. Oral testimony was taken at the public hearings. The Commission also considered written testimony submitted from other sources.

In addition to the information gathered through oral testimonies and written comments, the Commission received and reviewed other information. Commissioner member, Mr. Tom Lee, who is a child support referee, reported on issues raised by the child support referees. DCS extracted and summarized guidelines deviation data from its automated system and presented it to the Commission. The summary identified the number of child support orders established since the last guidelines review in which deviations from the guidelines were noted and the reasons for those deviations. The Commission also received several briefing reports relevant to the updating of the child support schedule, including current economic data on the cost of raising children. The briefings were developed by Dr. Jane Venohr, an economist and nationally-recognized expert on child support guidelines, who was retained by DCS to provide technical assistance. DSS also made its Legal Counsel available to the Commission to provide legal expertise about the child support services provided through its division. Similarly, the Director of Policy and Legal Services of the Unified Judicial System (UJS) attended each of the Commission’s meetings to lend her expertise on the child support process from the court perspective.

In addition, the Commission met via teleconference on November 9. All Commission meetings were open and in compliance with State open-meeting requirements.

The Commission dissolves and ceases to exist upon completion of its report to the Governor and legislature.

RECOMMENDATIONS

Table 1 summarizes the Commission’s recommendations. Appendix A contains a mark-up of the recommended changes to statute.

Table 1 SUMMARY OF RECOMMENDATIONS
1.	Amend the child support obligation schedule in SDCL 25-7-6.2 to reflect current economic data on the costs of raising children in South Dakota and expand the schedule to $30,000 monthly net income as shown in Appendix A.
2.	Incorporate a self-support reserve equivalent to $871 per month into the very low-income area of the schedule in SDCL 25-7-6.2 and provide a minimum order of $79 per month.
3.	Amend SDCL 25-7-6.22 to provide a clear definition of full-time employment.

DETAILED ANALYSIS OF RECOMMENDATIONS

RECOMMENDATION 1: AMEND THE CHILD SUPPORT OBLIGATION SCHEDULE IN SDCL 25-7-6.2 TO REFLECT CURRENT ECONOMIC DATA ON THE COSTS OF RAISING CHILDREN IN SOUTH DAKOTA AND EXPAND THE SCHEDULE TO A MONTHLY NET INCOME OF $30,000.

Issue

Federal regulation requires states review economic data on the cost of child rearing as part of a state’s guidelines review; and, if appropriate, update the schedule.

The existing child support schedule is based on economic data available in 2008. More current economic data is available to update the schedule to 2016 price levels. Using the updated data would also permit the highest amount of the schedule to be extended from $20,000 to $30,000 monthly net income.

Discussion

A major issue faced by the Commission was whether the support obligation schedule should be updated to more recent economic data.

The schedule is used for calculation of child support obligations and reflects child-rearing expenditures for intact families for a range of parents' combined net incomes in relationship to the number of children. Children of disrupted families, regardless of whether their parents are separated, divorced or never married, are entitled to the same level of expenditures the children would have received had the parents lived together. Further, each parent is responsible for his or her pro rata share of the total support obligation.

The support obligation schedule in SDCL 25-7-6.2 was last updated in 2008. The 2012 Commission did not recommend a change to the schedule as economic data available in 2012 showed the economic impact of the 2008-09 economic recessions was lingering, and there was not clear evidence that the economy was improving or prices and expenditures would stabilize or increase soon or before the next guidelines review.

Acknowledging that the economy has since improved, the 2016 Commission reviewed current economic data on the cost of raising children and recommends updating the schedule to the current price levels. The existing schedule is based on an economic study conducted by Professor David Betson using the "Rothbarth" methodology to separate the child's share of expenditures from total expenditures in expenditure data collected from families surveyed from 1998 to 2004.<sup>2</sup> The Commission considered an updated Betson-Rothbarth (BR) study using expenditures data collected from families surveyed in 2004 to 2009, which is the most current BR study available.<sup>3</sup> The updated BR study contains methodological differences from the study underlying the current schedule. Those methodological differences produced anomalous differences between the existing schedule and the updated BR study. As a result, the Commission recommends staying with the current BR study and updating to 2016 price levels.

Price levels have increased since the existing schedule was developed. Some of that increase is offset by increases in income, so the actual increase to the schedule amounts is generally less than a two-percentage point increase in the percentage of income assigned to child support. Increasing the schedule now would likely prevent the need for larger increases in the future when price levels increase.

The Commission heard public testimony, including testimony from private attorneys and child support referees, that the schedule needs to be extended to higher incomes. They believe extending the schedule to higher incomes would improve the consistency of the support award determinations in cases where the parents' combined income exceeds $20,000 per month, as well as provide more predictable support award amounts for parents with combined incomes above $20,000 per month. In short, extending the schedule to higher incomes would improve the consistency and predictability of support awards.

Recommendation Summary

Retain the existing study as the basis of the schedule and update to 2016 price levels to reflect current costs of raising children in South Dakota. Additionally, the Commission recommends extending the schedule in SDCL 25-7-6.2 to net incomes of $30,000 per month as shown in Appendix A.

RECOMMENDATION 2: INCORPORATE A SELF-SUPPORT RESERVE EQUIVALENT TO $871 PER MONTH INTO THE VERY LOW-INCOME AREA OF THE SCHEDULE IN SDCL 25-7-6.2 AND PROVIDE A MINIMUM ORDER OF $79 PER MONTH.

Issues

There are several issues with the low-income area of the schedule in SDCL 25-7-6.2, particularly the emboldened area, which is intended to provide a low-income adjustment for obligated parents with poverty or near poverty income. In general, the current adjustment yields amounts above what an obligated parent can pay while retaining sufficient income to live at least at a subsistence level. In other words, the current adjustment can further impoverish obligated parents with poverty incomes.

Discussion

The current definition of poverty— the 2016 federal poverty level (FPL) for one person— is $990 per month. The existing schedule in SDCL 25-7-6.2 provides the order amount for an obligated parent with an income of $990 per month is $216 for one child, $279 for two children, $312 for three children, $335 for four children, $357 for five children, and $379 for six children because these are the amounts for any income within the range of $0 to $1,100. For an obligated parent with a net income of $1,100 per month, the maximum amount of support that would leave him or her with sufficient income to at least live at the 2016 FPL (i.e., $990 per month) is $110 per month. For incomes below $1,100, the amount would be less.

The Commission heard comments from referees and others that these minimum amounts were too high and the low-income adjustment, and the emboldened area of the schedule above the $0 to $1,100 income range were also too high. Specifically, the amounts are beyond what very low-income parents (i.e. disabled) can reasonably pay. The sentiment is consistent with national trends emphasizing the importance of setting appropriate award amounts that a low-income parent can reasonably pay based on his or her actual income.<sup>4</sup> Most states provide a self-support reserve (SSR) in their guidelines that

<sup>4</sup> The trends included proposed evidence-based federal rule changes that would require states to consider the subsistence needs of the obligated parent in their guidelines and make other evidence-based changes aimed at improving the treatment of low-income parents. The rules are available from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. (Nov. 17, 2014). "Flexibility, Efficiency, and Modernization in Child Support Enforcement Programs." Federal Register, Vol. 79, No. 221, p. 68580.

relates to the FPL for one person. Some low-income states set it lower than the FPL, while other high income states set it higher to reflect that state's above average cost of living. At one time, the South Dakota schedule incorporated a SSR in its schedule, but the SSR was engulfed by other changes in 2008 to accommodate increases in the federal minimum wage that were legislated in 2007.

The Commission believes it is important to incorporate an SSR into the schedule and break down the existing income interval of $0 to $1,100 into several income intervals that also include a SSR. The Commission proposes a SSR adjusted for South Dakota's income, specifically a SSR of $871 per month, which is equivalent to South Dakota's price parity (88.0%)<sup>5</sup> multiplied by the current FPL ($990). The SSR is incorporated into the proposed schedule by taking the lower of the two amounts: the schedule amount adjusted to 2016 price levels, and the difference between the income and the proposed SSR.<sup>6</sup> The Commission also proposes changes to the emboldened area that comport with the proposed SSR; that is, the areas adjusted for the proposed SSR are emboldened.

The Commission recognizes the need for a minimum order when income is below or near the self-support reserve. For example, at an income of $850 per month, the obligated parent would not even have sufficient income to meet the proposed self-support reserve of $871 per month. A minimum order, even a token amount, establishes a precedent of financial responsibility to the children and when paid and distributed to the family, makes a difference in the financial lives of children. The most common minimum order amount used by states is $50 per month. This has been the common amount for decades, but recently states are adopting or considering higher amounts. For simplicity and consistency, the Commission favored a minimum order of $79, and applying it to incomes of $0 to $950 per month. The $79 is the difference between $950, which is the top of the proposed income range and $871 per month, the proposed self-support reserve.

Recommendation Summary

Adopt the changes in the low-income area of the schedule in SDCL 25-7-6.2 as shown in Appendix A and set a minimum order amount.

<sup>5</sup> The U.S. Bureau of Economic Analysis (BEA) developed and calculates the price parity to measure the differences in the price levels of goods and services across states for a given year. Price parities are expressed as a percentage of the overall national price level for each year, which is equal to 100%. If a state has a price parity of less than 100%, its price levels are below average; if a state has a price parity of more than 100%, its price levels are above average. The most recent data is from 2014. It shows South Dakota's price parity is 88.0%. U.S. Bureau of Economic Analysis, Real Personal Income for States and Metropolitan Areas, 2014. [http://www.bea.gov/newsreleases/regional/rpp/rpp\_newsrelease.htm ]

<sup>6</sup>For example, at a net income of $1,100 per month, the average amount expended on one child in 2016 dollars is $282 per month while the difference between $1,100 and a SSR of $871 is $229, so $229 is the amount provided in the proposed schedule changes.

RECOMMENDATION 3: AMEND SDCL 25-7-6.22 TO PROVIDE A CLEAR DEFINITION OF FULL TIME EMPLOYMENT.

Issues

The underlying issue is there is a not clear definition of full time employment in the guidelines, although the guidelines mention “full time” several times. Not all referees and judges consistently define full time. Some assume full time means 40 hours per week, 52 weeks per year. Others are less concerned with hours, and more concerned with the primary occupation. Exacerbating the issue is that a growing number of occupations do not offer a 40-hour workweek, 52 weeks per year. In turn, this has indirect consequences for guidelines provisions pertaining to income imputation and income from second jobs that mention “full-time” employment, but do not define it. SDCL 25-7-6.22 provides a rebuttable presumption that second job income is not to be considered in establishing support obligation if a parent is employed full-time at a rate of pay that equals or exceeds the state's minimum wage. SDCL 25-7-6.4 provides that the parent's child support obligation shall be computed at a rate not less than full-time employment at the state minimum wage.

Discussion

The Commission recognizes and heard comments that there are several occupations that do not offer a 40-hour workweek, 52 weeks per year; and, this indirectly affects the guidelines calculation. The definition of full-time work by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics is 35 hours per week. The Commission also identified several examples: retailers often schedule workers for less than 40 hours per week and school teachers do not usually work 40 hours per week, 52 weeks per year. The former example is relevant to the presumption that a parent, at a minimum is capable of full-time employment at minimum wage. It is common for service sector employers to offer less than 40-hour work weeks. The latter example of the school teacher is relevant to whether a school teacher’s income from summer employment should be included as income in the calculation of support, as at least one referee did, because the teacher’s primary occupation did not require 40 hours per week for 52 weeks.

The Commission believes it is important to establish a quantitative threshold that is realistic, reflective of typical employment hours, and could easily be applied. To this end, the Commission settled on relating the recommended threshold to a 35-hour workweek, 52 hours per year. This amounts to 1,820 hours per year.

Recommendation Summary

Amend SDCL 25-7-6.22 to read “if a parent has annual primary employment earnings equaling or exceeding the current state minimum hourly wage multiplied by 1,820 hours, it is presumed that a parent’s second job income is not to be considered in establishing a support obligation. This presumption may be rebutted by evidence that the income source was available to pay expenses related to the child when the parent initially became obligated for the support of the child pursuant to § 25-7-6.1

OTHER MATTERS ADDRESSED BY COMMISSION

Several other issues were identified through the public hearings and written comments submitted to the Commission, but did not result in recommendations for a variety of reasons. One reason for no recommendation was the issue was not identified as a common concern; instead, it was often unique to the individual submitting the comment. Other reasons include the issue being outside the scope of the executive order or lack of public awareness. In response to some of the lack of awareness issues, DCS may be able to address some of them through its website because DCS is continuously improving its website to better inform parents of child support processes.

The Commission discussed pending proposed federal rule changes pertaining to state child support guidelines review requirements; however, no finalized rule changes were released prior to the Commission's November 9th meeting. The Federal Office of Child Support Enforcement (OCSE) had revised the 2014 proposed federal rules after receiving public comment, but cannot release information about how the finalized rules would be similar or different from the proposed rules. Without knowing what the finalized rules will be, it makes no sense for the Commission to take further actions on them. The Commission, however, recognizes the proposed rule changes, and is not making any recommendations that would be inconsistent with them. In fact, the Commission's self-support reserve recommendation is likely to make the South Dakota guidelines compliant or more compliant with the proposed federal rule change requiring that a state's guidelines take in consideration the subsistence needs of the obligated parent.

APPENDIX A

RECOMMENDED LEGISLATION PROPOSED BY THE COMMISSION

FOR AN ACT ENTITLED, An act to revise certain provisions relating to child support.

BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF SOUTH DAKOTA:

Section 1. That §25-7-6.2 be amended to read as follows:

The child support obligation shall be established in accordance with the following schedule subject to the revisions or deviations as permitted by this chapter. Except as provided in this chapter, the combined monthly net incomes of both parents shall be used in determining the obligation which shall be divided proportionately between the parents based upon their respective net incomes. The noncustodial parent's proportionate share establishes the amount of the child support order.

If the obligation using only the noncustodial parent's monthly net income is an obligation within the emboldened areas of the schedule, that amount shall be compared to the noncustodial parent's proportionate share using both parents' monthly net incomes. The lesser amount establishes the noncustodial parent's child support order.

The share of the custodial parent is presumed to be spent directly for the benefit of the child.

Section 2. That §25-7-6.4 be amended to read:

Except in cases of physical or mental disability, it is presumed for the purposes of determination of child support that a parent is capable of being employed ~~at the minimum wage,~~ a minimum of 1,820 hours per year, including while incarcerated, and the parent's child support obligation shall be computed at a rate not less than ~~full-time employment~~ 1,820 hours per year at the state minimum wage. Evidence to rebut this presumption may be presented by either parent.

Section 3. That § 25-7-6.13 be amended to read:

All orders for support entered and in effect prior to July 1, ~~2009~~ 2017, may be modified in accordance with this chapter without requiring a showing of a change in circumstances from the entry of the order.

Section 4. That § 25-7-6.22 be amended to read:

~~If a parent is employed full-time at a rate of pay that equals or exceeds the state's minimum wage,~~
If a parent has annual primary employment earnings equaling or exceeding the current state minimum hourly wage multiplied by 1,820 hours, it is presumed that a parent's second job income is not to be considered in establishing a support obligation. This presumption may be rebutted by evidence that the income source was available to pay expenses related to the child when the parent initially became obligated for the support of the child pursuant to § 25-7-6.1.
